NATIVE GRASSES AND SEDGES: SMART CHOICES FOR BETTER LANDSCAPES

Shannon Currey is a horticultural educator and consultant with Izel Native Plants.

Shannon currently serves on the Perennial Plant Association's Board of Directors and the North Carolina Plant Conservation Scientific Committee. She was honored in 2020 with the Libby Wilder Award from the North Carolina Nursery & Landscape Association.

In 2022, she joined Izel Native Plants to expand their education and outreach efforts. An online retailer for native plants, Izel helps consumers source plants to create environmentally sound landscapes that support local ecosystems. Shannon is based in Durham, North Carolina and loves exploring the incredible plant diversity around her.

Our much anticipated annual spring event is back with another awesome presenter! Shannon Currey will teach us native plant-based solutions to common landscaping challenges. Your sponsorship will support our grant program that helps volunteers plant more native trees, shrubs, and flowers in Anne Arundel County. As a sponsor, your company logo and story will be seen by our network of homeowners associations, faith-based organizations, scout families, local volunteer organizations, and backyard environmentalists, plus the attendees of this fun lecture which features raffles and prizes too.
